DETAILED ACTION

Allowable Subject Matter

1. Claims 1-23 are allowed.
2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:
3. Applicant's invention is drawn to a system that provides notification of automatically forwarded electronic mail messages. To accomplish the above function according to the present invention, there is provided a method system and program in a data processing system for processing an electronic mail message. The electronic mail message is identified for a recipient and it is determined whether the electronic mail message for the recipient is being forwarded from another address associated with the recipient. An indicator is included to identify the electronic mail message as being forwarded if the electronic mail message being forwarded is from another address associated with the recipient.
4. Applicant's independent claims 1, 10-12, and 21-23 each recite, inter alia, a system and method in a data processing system for processing an electronic mail message comprising the steps of determining whether the electronic mail message is to an old address for a recipient, wherein the old address is no longer a current address for the recipient, including an indicator identifying the electronic mail message as being forwarded from the old address wherein the indicator indicates that the old address is no longer current for the recipient, and sending the electronic mail message with the indicator to another address if the electronic mail message is to be forwarded to another address associated with the recipient. Applicant's invention of claims 1, 10-12, and 21-23 comprise a particular combination of elements, which is neither taught nor suggested by the prior art.

5. The closest prior art of record:

McDowell, U. S. Patent No. 6, 438, 583; discloses a method and apparatus for re-routing e-mail sent to a prior address to the new address of an intended recipient wherein the user signs up with the re-route server to have email forwarded to a new address and when e-mail, that is to be forwarded, is received at the re-route server, the e-mail is forwarded to the recipient's "toAccount" address which has been provided by the re-route customer to the re-route server.

McDowell does not teach including an indicator identifying the electronic mail message as being forwarded from the old address wherein the indicator indicates that the old address is no longer current for the recipient, and sending the electronic mail message with the indicator to another address if the electronic mail message is to be forwarded to another address associated with the recipient.

Henderson, U. S. Patent No. 6,185,603; discloses a system and method for delivering e-mail and alerting messages wherein the typical email message includes a portion that indicates the source of the message and from where it was forwarded. Henderson does not teach including an indicator identifying the electronic mail message as being forwarded from the old address wherein the indicator indicates that the old address is no longer current for the recipient, and sending the electronic mail message with the indicator to another address if the electronic mail message is to be forwarded to another address associated with the recipient.

Nielson, U. S. Patent No. 6,405,243; discloses a system and method for forwarding an email message to an updated email address wherein the sender's email program constructs a new email message containing the content of the sender's original message but addressed to the new email address of the recipient and transmits the new message to the recipient's new address.

Nielson does not teach including an indicator identifying the electronic mail message as being forwarded from the old address wherein the indicator indicates that the old address is no longer current for the recipient, and sending the electronic mail message with the indicator to another address if the electronic mail message is to be forwarded to another address associated with the recipient.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
